

CDL: Flint Hills Technical College Launches New CDL Program, Starting April 22nd

Emporia, KS - Flint Hills Technical College (FHTC) is excited to announce the introduction of its new Commercial Driver's License (CDL) Program, set to commence on April 22nd. This program arises from the allocation of business development funds by the state, with training conducted by the Kansas Department of Revenue. FHTC's own Eric Crook, a seasoned professional in the field, participated in the training and received commendations from the senior state CDL Coordinator.

The CDL Program aims to equip students with the necessary skills and certifications for a career in commercial driving. Participants will undergo rigorous training, including comprehensive skills preparation and testing, to ensure they meet the requirements set by the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA). Upon successful completion, students will be eligible for their CDL license, opening doors to a wide range of career opportunities in the transportation industry.

Eric Crook, the lead trainer for the program, brings a wealth of experience to the table. With over three decades in the industry, including roles in trucking and management, Eric is passionate about sharing his expertise and guiding aspiring drivers toward success.

"This program is a gateway to a world of opportunities," says Eric. "Whether you're interested in long-haul trucking or prefer local routes, obtaining your CDL license can pave the way for a rewarding career."

The CDL Program at FHTC is not only about obtaining a license; it's also about preparing students for diverse career paths within the transportation sector. From driving for large corporations to exploring opportunities in municipal or school transportation, graduates of the program will be well-positioned to pursue their desired career trajectories.
